

PRIVATE RESIDENCE

Bridgman, Michigan 1998-2002

This house, tucked in the southwestern Michigan dunes, started life as a small half cape cottage with a gambrel roof.

A large screen porch was added to the west side of the house, and a large expansion included a new entry and living room at the first level. A master bedroom suite above and workshop at the lower level round out the transformation.

Decks and terraces were arranged to create an all-season getaway with many outdoor spaces, while minimizing the impact on the adjacent dunes.
